Return to Campus, Contact Tracing and Beyond

The COVID-19 pandemic continues to cause significant challenges for colleges and universities across the country. Higher education is experiencing unprecedented losses due to the cessation of research, and the closure of campus that seriously questions the viability of some institutions. The need for new processes and technology has become almost a mandate for the safe and effective opening of a campus environment. Now more than ever, it is critical to understand the needs of students, faculty and staff to manage and coordinate their return to campus and establish enhanced levels of safety and operations through contact tracing and risk management.

Keep Faculty, Staff, Students and Visitors Safe

Maintain a strong link with your people, wherever they are, and share with them what's important:

- + Conduct daily surveys with students, faculty and staff to assess their health status through symptom checks and provide evidence of verification
- + Gain a full assessment and understanding of risk factors on campus through wellness checks
- + Facilitate Self Reporting mechanisms

- + Proactively notify those that may have been exposed based upon established proximity and duration thresholds with guidance
- + Provide assistance and relevant information for those that have tested positive
- + Allow for ties to CDC and University guidelines to all faculty staff and students

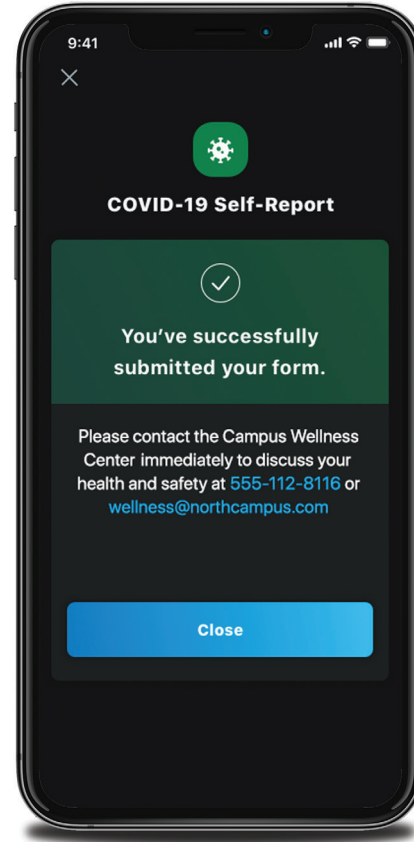

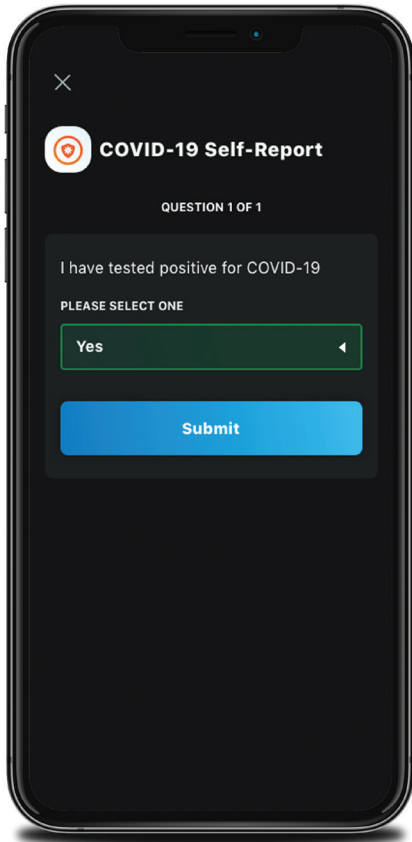

KEEP YOUR STUDENTS, VISITORS AND PEOPLE SAFE

Leverage End-to-end Contact Tracing

Digital contact tracing in unison with other manual processes will afford schools the ability to open campuses, enable sports to resume, enhance clarity reporting and timely warning requirements around the virus, and ease the minds of parents, students and staff that the university is taking all steps necessary to protect their university family.
